Join this global dialogue on transformation opportunities for transport

Transport and Climate Change Week (TCCW) is an opportunity for capacity building among representatives of public entities around the world. Internationally renowned experts on sustainable mobility will offer training sessions and be available for in-depth discussions.

The 5th edition will consist of meetings at regional hubs in Africa, Asia, Europe and in Latin America we will meet in Bogotá. A hybrid event from Berlin will collect the results of the regional hubs and connect participants from all over the world.

How to join?

ON SITE

Connect in person with other national representatives in Bogota.

ON DEMAND

Soak up as much knowledge as possible. Recordings will be available after the event.

A global event with a perspective from Latin America

- The regional agenda for Latin America and the Caribbean will take place in person between Monday 09.05 and Thursday 12.05.
- On Wednesday, the Latin American activities will be live transmitted as part of the general program and will guide the conversations at global level.
- Experts from all continents will follow the regional agenda and join the debate virtually.
- In addition, parts of the Latinamerican regional agenda will be streamed throughout the rest of the week with the goal of expanding the discussion from other regions.

Join us in Bogotá!

Why a Latinamerican on-site event?

We want to generate a space for exchange in Latin America that will allow us to share advances and topics of interest for sustainable mobility, highlight valuable experiences in the region, facilitate connections, share advances, solutions and stories of change to transform transportation.

Why join us on-site?

1. Field visit in a reference city for sustainable transport system
2. Spend a week with ca. 50 others experts
3. Networking and Exchange in person with peers from the region
